WISE MOVE
IN COTTON

IT was a relief on Wednesday afternoon, to find that the majority of the cotton industry has at last come to its senses.

It was with even greater relief to read this morning that the standout Hongkong Cotton Spinners' Association had finally made up its mind to join the other associations and present a united front to the forces opposing the Colony.

Individual interests within the industry have been fighting for a long time. The lack of policy co-ordination has not only frustrated efforts to show a united front, but it has caused many doubts to enter the minds of people in other parts of the world who have shown that they are sympathetic towards the Colony.

Warned

THE China Mail has told the industry time and again the writing is on the wall and suggested that it is necessary to get down to facts and take a realistic view of itself and the world markets.

The position has been aggravated by the possibility that Britain will have to enter the European Common Market and there appears to be no doubt at this moment that such a move is inevitable.

With the decision to set up a Cotton Advisory Board, Hongkong can negotiate, provided of course, that the leaders are able and capable of working on behalf of the industry and at the same time bear in mind the interests of the Colony as a whole.

Full backing

THE leaders must also have the full backing of the industry as, otherwise their decisions will be useless.

The problem is a difficult one and there are many facets to it.

But how much easier it would have been if the elementary precaution had been taken months ago to appoint a negotiating board?

Mr Cowperthwaite and Mr Angus went to Britain with nothing in their hands. They had no big sticks to wave and not even a magic wand to mesmerise the ardent opponents of the Colony's industry.

Cohesion

IF Mr Cowperthwaite had been able to go to the current GATT conference in Geneva knowing that the majority of the cotton industry had finally achieved a measure of cohesion within itself and had had the co-operation of the Hongkong Government his task would have been easy.

The newly constituted board will meet on Saturday and our representative stands in Geneva like a man with no arms. The best he can do is to stell the bars which are undoubtedly being thrown at him.

If, following the first meeting of the board, Mr Cowperthwaite can be armed with offensive and defensive weapons then Hongkong will be able to negotiate on reasonable terms with opponents more powerful than ourselves.

HK-OWNED BANKS IN MIDDLE EAST NATIONALISED

Two small branches of the British Bank of Middle East in Syria have been handed over under the nationalisation programme of President Nasser of the United Arab Republic, Sir Michael Turner, Chairman and Chief Manager of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, revealed this morning.

The Hongkong and Shanghai Bank bought the British Bank of Middle East in the beginning of 1960.

However, Sir Michael said: "The handing over of the two small branches does not make any material difference to the working of the British Bank of Middle East."

An Associated Press report from Cairo said: President Nasser nationalised all banks and insurance companies in the United Arab Republic on Thursday.

Altogether 75 banks and insurance firms in Egypt and 23 more in the Syrian region of the UAR are affected.

SUNDAY TIMES TO HAVE COLOUR SUPPLEMENT

London, July 21. The London Sunday Times will come out with a colour section early next year, it was announced here today.

Mr Roy Thomson, chairman of Thomson Newspapers, owners of the Sunday Times, said the section would comprise at least eight pages of news feature illustrations and advertisements.

He said he had been familiar with colour sections in newspapers "for much of my publishing life in North America."

"I am sure they provide the pattern for Britain," he said.

Mr Noel-Baker proposed that a neutral zone should be established between the British and Iraqi forces in Kuwait, supervised by United Nations observers.

This would avert a danger that British forces might be engaged in armed combat with the Iraqi army and prevent the unnecessary loss of British lives, he said.—Reuter.

Iraqi envoys walk out of meeting

Cairo, July 20. The Arab League today admitted the Persian Gulf oil sheikhdom of Kuwait to League membership, it was officially announced.

The Iraqi delegation walked out of the meeting while the vote was being taken, alleging that the League was "walking with British imperialism".

(Cairo Radio said that the Council's vote was unanimous, the Iraqi delegate being reported absent following his withdrawal.)

The Kuwaiti delegation headed by Mr Abdul Aziz Hussein was invited to take its place at the Council table.

A role

Meanwhile, in London, Mr Harold Macmillan, the Prime Minister, said today, that the possibility of the Arab League playing a role in the Kuwait situation must not be altogether left on one side.

He was answering questions in the House of Commons about the possibility of the United Nations taking a hand.

Mr Philip Noel-Baker (Labour) asked who objected to the United Nations' presence in Kuwait. Was it the Ruler or the British Government?

Mr Macmillan replied: "We are in this difficulty. The Soviet veto on our eminently reasonable resolution has made things more difficult in the United Nations."

Mr Roy Thomson, chairman of Thomson Newspapers, owners of the Sunday Times, said the section would comprise at least eight pages of news feature illustrations and advertisements.

Open mind

(The British resolution called on all states to respect the integrity and territorial integrity of Kuwait and welcome any constructive steps which the Arab League might take.)

Mr Macmillan said: "That Kuwait was not a member of the United Nations, but the government would certainly keep an open mind on this, as on other possible solutions."

lished between the British and Iraqi forces in Kuwait, supervised by United Nations observers.

BOAC RESUMES UK FLIGHTS TO HONGKONG

A Comet jet airliner leaves London at 6 pm Hong Kong time for the Far East to resume British Overseas Airways Corporation's flights out of London Airport after a two-week old wildcat strike that paralysed the Corporation's worldwide services for five days.

The Comet, Flight No BA930, off again for London at 3:30 pm on the same day. It will touch down at Kai Tak Airport tomorrow at 8:25 pm. It will then proceed to Tokyo.

Another Comet, BA939, will take off from Tokyo on Sunday for Hongkong. After a brief stopover at Kai Tak, it will take

LEE WINS A VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

Singapore, July 20. Mr Lee Kuan-yew, Prime Minister of Singapore, tonight won a vote of confidence after telling the Assembly that Singapore's current political crisis had been engineered by the British government.

But in the vote, called after Mr Lee's party had been defeated in two successive by-elections, 13 government members were among the 16 abstentions.

RESULT

The result was 27 votes to eight — and one of the votes in favour came from an independent member of the opposition.

This would avert a danger that British forces might be engaged in armed combat with the Iraqi army and prevent the unnecessary loss of British lives, he said.—Reuter.

STREET BATTLES IN BIZERTA TOWN

Tunis, July 20. Tunis Radio tonight reported street fighting in Bizerta Town. It said French troops, including paratroopers, had tried to occupy barracks which had earlier been handed over to the Tunisians.

The radio said the last road block on the outskirts of Bizerta on the road from the base area had been completely destroyed. Tunisian troops and volunteers had withdrawn to a square by the seaside governorate. Tunisian forces still held the strategic points of the town.

Wounded

The radio said Bizerta's regional hospital was full of wounded. An emergency hospital had been opened at a stadium.

Tunisian casualties in the fighting are 100 dead and 60 captured, French official sources said in Paris tonight.

At the same time, official sources said further French reinforcements have been flown to the base after Tunisian attacks this morning.

The decision to send them, the sources added, was taken because of evidence of Tunisian intentions to stage a "trial of strength."

Speaking in the Senate, Mr Debre referred to the situation in Bizerta as a "deplorable quarrel which Tunisia has provoked."

"We have never hidden our wish to complete the improvement of relations by an agreement on Bizerta. It is true that a problem exists on the status of Bizerta and we are ready to discuss it."

Infact

Official sources here said that late this afternoon the Tunisians were harassing Bizerta with mortars, bazookas, and 105-millimetre cannons, and heavy machine-guns.

Tunisian soldiers, mixed with women and children, equivalent in strength to three battalions, staged continual assaults against the base "obliging French troops to reply as soon as military elements appeared to avoid the danger of being overwhelmed."

The perimeter of the base was held intact; the sources said.

French aircraft bombed Tunisian emplacements with rockets, the sources said, but added that napalm was not used.

They denied a Radio Tunis report that the cruisers Colbert,

U.S. TEXTILE QUOTAS TO BE RECOMMENDED

Washington, July 20. Representative Carroll D. Kearns predicted today that a House subcommittee studying unemployment in the textile industry will recommend import quotas for textiles.

Mr Kearns, ranking Republican, said U.S. industries must be protected and added: "I don't think you can do it with tariffs. You have to go it on a quota basis for some form of allotment."

Mr Kearns said he was not against reciprocal trade in theory. He said the United States must trade with Japan and other countries to keep them from dealing with the Communist bloc.

Rampant

"But I don't think they should run rampant over us," he said.

His comments came as a group of textile state Congressmen told the House subcommittee that the industry needed some form of relief from imports — preferably through strict quotas or tariffs.

In Geneva, textile experts of 17 nations today gathered in multilateral meetings to discuss ways of expanding the cotton textile market among the world's developing nations.

The multilateral meetings began at 1:30 GMT.

The textile conference, which began on Monday, was called by the United States to find new markets for cheap Far Eastern textiles and to curb the flow of the inexpensive goods to Britain and the United States.

Proposed

At the opening session, the United States proposed that Hongkong cut back its exports to the United States by somewhat more than 30 per cent.

At the same time, the U.S. plan provides that Japan might increase its exports to the United States two to three per cent.

It was believed that the United States' plan asked certain European nations — like France and Italy — to open up their highly restrictive markets.

SHARKS AT TYTAM BAY

Two sharks were reportedly sighted in Tytam Bay at about 6:30 pm yesterday.

As a result, swimmers in Stanley, Shek O, and Repulse Bay were alerted, said a Government spokesman.

One eye-witness said he saw a large silvery shark leap out of the water and jump into a fish trap rigged up on poles in the water near the reservoir inlet.

TEAR-GAS AGAINST AFRICANS

Lusaka, July 21. Police hurled tear-gas bombs to disperse a crowd of 300 African nationalists demonstrating today at the main beer hall in Matero, a non-white township in Northern Rhodesia.

The nationalists are running a boycott campaign against the beer halls to prevent Africans drinking instead of "working for freedom."

The crowd refused to move at first when the police ordered them to do so and reinforcements armed with tear-gas grenades were called.—AP.

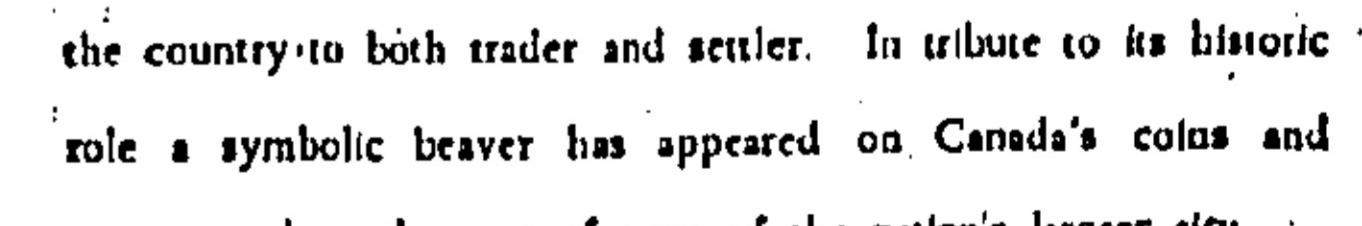

SYMBOLS OF CANADA

A WORLD TRADING NATION

 Castor gas—the pelt of the North American beaver—was one of the first of Canada's resources to enter the stream of world trade. Pursuit of the beaver was the economic force that opened the country to both trader and settler. In tribute to its historic role a symbolic beaver has appeared on Canada's coins and stamps, and on the coat of arms of the nation's largest city.

Canada's exports have become greatly diversified since the day of the beaver. A symbol of one of the nation's important exports of the 20th century is the Manufacturers Life's maple leaf and world emblem. Manufacturers Life was one of several companies to introduce a Canadian "brand" of life insurance to other parts of the globe and in 1930 opened an office in Hong Kong. Today in 20 countries around the world Manufacturers

Life enjoys a reputation for liberal and progressive policy contracts; a strong financial position and competent financial counsel provided by a group of well-trained representatives.

WEEKLY REPORT ON THE HONGKONG STOCK EXCHANGE

THE MARKET RETREATS

Berlin crisis said main conditioner

The Hongkong Stock Market retreated in all sections this week. A clear decline took place on Monday, price changes were small for the next two days, but prices eased further yesterday.

The Berlin crisis and the expected British "credit squeeze" were said to be the main factors for the downward movement of the market.

Of the two crises, the touchy Berlin situation was said to have the stronger influence on current prices.

One stock broker pointed out that the British economic situation had its effect on the Hongkong market earlier than the current week. He said that the Berlin question would now be the main market conditioner.

The leading share, Hongkong Banks, went down to $904 yesterday, a loss of $10 on the previous week. Banks apparently did not respond to an appreciable rise of those stocks on the London market on Tuesday, when prices made an overnight jump from £17 to £18½.

The volume of business this week of about $2,700,000 was a big decrease on the previous week when the turnover was about $3,700,000.

Market diary

Friday: Humphreys and City Hotels showed good gains, the latter with a rise of 10%. This was matched by the rise in rubber shares led by Amalgamated Rubbers. Wheellook was noticeably quiet, and Banks were fractionally easier.

The market continued in a strong mood, but freedom of movement appeared in some cases to be restricted. Turnover was approximately $5,200,000.

Wednesday: Trading was quiet in this half day session and prices eased slightly in spite of the news of a rise in London Banks yesterday. Turnover was approximately $3,490,000.

Thursday: The morning session was distinctly dull with prices easier but paradoxically more buyers than sellers. The afternoon showed a distinct improvement led by Wheellook with some leading brokers selling at prices 5% above those at which they were buying in the morning. This appeared to cause a general rise all round and the price level at the close was on a higher plane. The market closed at the day's strongest with turnover approximately $5,200,000.

U.S. Govt ends year with deficit

Washington, July 20. The United States Government had a deficit of $3,900 million in the financial year which ended last month. This was stated in a joint report today by Mr. Douglas Dillon, Secretary of the Treasury, and Mr. Davis Bell, Budget Director, who said the Government spent more and received less than expected because the effect of the recent recession was greater than anticipated.

MORE SPENDING

Income tax produced less, tax refunds were higher, and there was increased spending on defence and to help the unemployed.

The deficit was much higher than had been estimated only a short time ago by top Administration officials.

Another deficit for the year ending on June 30, 1962, is now forecast. This deficit is expected to return to about $3,700 million dollars but almost certainly will be higher because of increased defence spending.—Reuter.

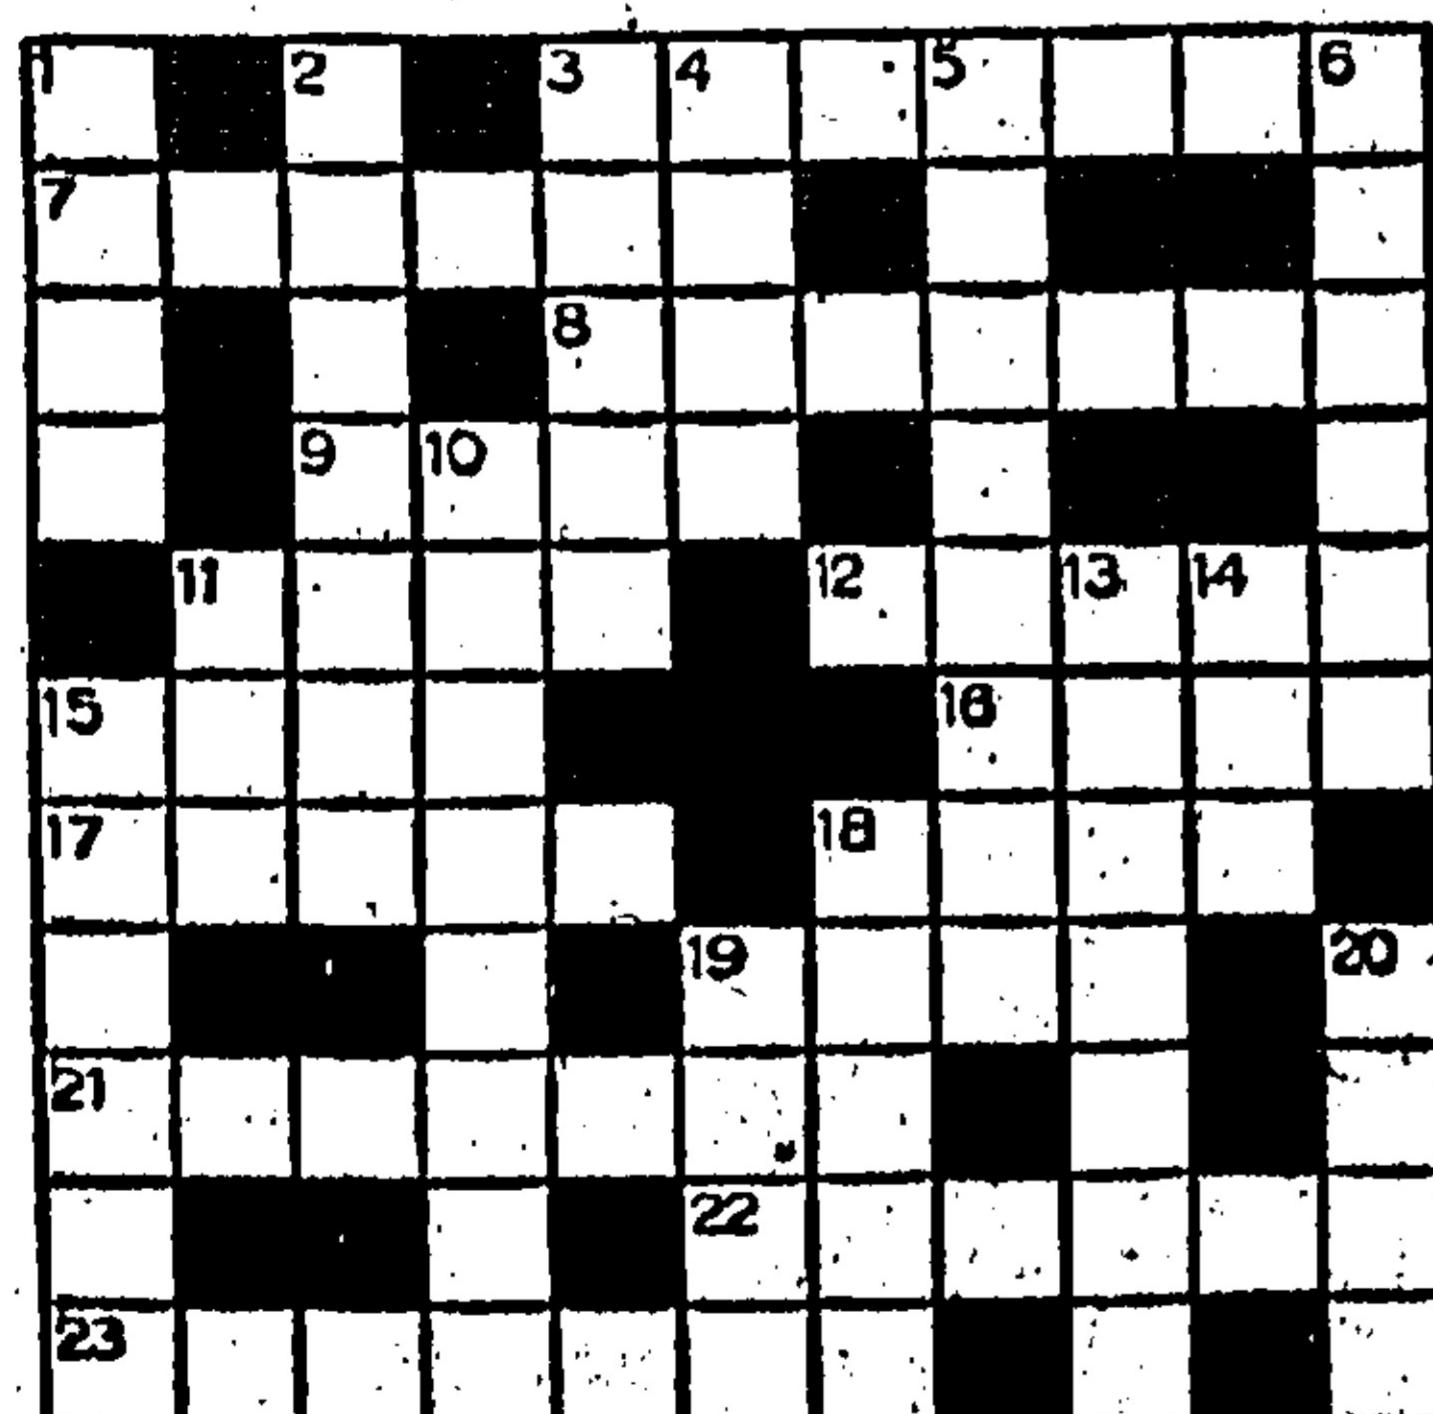

Suggestions from both sides

Evian, July 20. Both sides presented new suggestions for the conduct of negotiations when representatives of Franco and the insurgent "Algerian Provisional Government" today resumed peace talks here in the French Alps.

A French spokesman later said there were points common to both suggestions, which would be studied when delegates met again tomorrow.

He added that the French side wished to get over the procedural stage as soon as possible, and get down to discussion of concrete problems.—Reuter.

McNAMARA FLYING TO EUROPE FOR TALKS ON BERLIN CRISIS

Will meet Norstad, UK Defence Chief

Washington, July 20. Mr Robert McNamara, Secretary of Defence, and General Lyman Lemnitzer, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will fly to Paris on Saturday, July 22 and to London on Monday, July 24 for talks on Allied security measures in the Berlin crisis, the Defence Department announced today.

FRANCE'S VIEWS ON UK AND THE COMMON MARKET

Paris, July 20. Mr Maurice Couve de Murville, French Foreign Minister, said today that, in France's view, if Britain wished to join the Common Market she would have to accept the political as well as the economic obligations of membership.

He told the National Assembly that France's attitude was clearly defined by Tuesday's declaration after the Bonn meeting of the leaders of the Common Market countries.

Phouma hopeful of 3-faction Laotian talks

Paris, July 20. Prince Souvanna Phouma, the Laotian neutralist leader, said today that his half-brother Prince Souphanouvong, head of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao, would attend a three-faction Laotian Princely Summit with Prince Boun Oum, Prime Minister of the Vientiane Royal Laotian Government in Phnom Penh, Cambodia, next week.

Prince Souvanna Phouma leaves Paris tomorrow for Phnom Penh to attend the next and final phase of the Laotian Summit meeting aimed at the formation of a coalition government and ending the civil war in Laos.

Prince Souvanna Phouma has recovered from a surgical operation here, told reporters: "I believe that we shall be able to hold fruitful talks and reach an agreement."

Rome, July 20. The Italian Foreign Minister, Prof. Antonio Segni, was reported to have said today that a Moscow visit by the Prime Minister, Prof. Amintore Fanfani, was "practically decided," but the Italia News Agency later quoted him as denying he had done so.

Prof. Segni was reported to have made the remark while chatting with members of Parliament, when asked about persistent rumours in the past week of such a journey.

NO STATEMENT

Italia News Agency said that after a Cabinet meeting today, Prof. Segni told reporters: "I have made no statement on the Prime Minister's journey to Moscow."

When asked "some foreign news agencies report your statement," he repeated: "But I have stated nothing. I have made no statement," Italia reported.

Asked "But will the journey take place or not?" Prof. Segni replied, "This I do not know," Italia added.

"Authoritative" sources said today's Cabinet meeting did not discuss the subject.—Reuter.

A RECENT admission that enterpreneurs are tempted to exaggerate the size of their "fan-mail" should surprise nobody, least of all my 37,000,000 readers (adult), who write me on an average, 1,713,842 letters every day (adult).

The word "adult" is always inserted, to encourage people to say, "Anyhow, he is honest enough to proclaim that he is boasting himself, and even if he is exaggerating, the figures speak for themselves."

There are limits to demagogic. When a member puts his conscience, his convictions, and his pledges to his constituents above more important considerations, he is betraying the highest principles of party politics.

Intoxicating awareness

IT is a good suggestion that the coloured coal we are expecting should also be scented. A whiff of roses or magnolias during a quiet evening by the fire would be a pleasant accompaniment to a talk about coal on Kullavision. Scarlet and blue coke, smelling of sweetly scented stock and round knobs of coal in the shape of cricket balls, in the M.C.C. colours, and smelling of bat-oil, are entrancing possibilities.

Woman back in jail after escaping

LONDON.—A twenty-nine-year-old housewife jailed for house-breaking and theft was back in jail after escaping twice in six days.

Escape No. 1 by Beatrice Anne Norman was from Moortoft Lodge, Oakmoor, Staffordshire. She was recaptured near her caravan at Newport, Mon., after three days.

Escape No. 2 was from Cardiff jail.

With 17-year-old, Barbara Harris, who was on remand, she climbed 10ft. high gates, ran past warders' living quarters, and disappeared among crowds.

She walked 14 miles across fields towards her home, but when she arrived the other morning police were waiting.

Thirty minutes later her teenage companion was recaptured at Cardiff's Tiger Bay area.

Ex SS colonel says he was ashamed at mass murder of Jews

A former SS lieutenant colonel on trial for killing 19,000 Jews said today he is ashamed of the Nazi annihilation programme for Jews and blamed it all on "a brutal regime." Otto Braditsch, 68, told a West German court in his final plea at the close of a three-week trial:

Switch in British TV system proposed

London, July 20.
A switch by British television from its present 405-line standard to 625 lines would open 80 new export markets, a large television and radio company declared.

Pye of Cambridge said this in a memorandum to the Pilkington Committee, now considering the future of radio and television in Britain.

Pye said the nation could earn hundreds of millions sterling in television exports if she changed to the system used by most other countries where the picture was made up of 625 horizontal lines.

BETTER PICTURE

British viewers would also get a better picture.

The company said dual standard receivers—taking 405 and 625 lines—could be made for only £15 more than present sets costs.

Networks could broadcast in both line standards while a quick changeover was effected, Pye said.

The company also suggested that four free channels should be devoted to a new educational service in the 405-line service.—China Mail Special.

UK youth orchestra for Russia

London, July 20.
One hundred and ten members of the National Youth Orchestra—all children between 13 and 19 years of age—leave Britain on August 29 for a concert tour of the Soviet Union, West Germany, Finland and Sweden.

Dr Ruth Ralton, musical director, announcing this, said the visit to the Soviet Union was under the auspices of the British Council and had been arranged under the terms of the Anglo-Soviet cultural agreement signed in January.

Of the Soviet Union, Dr Ralton said: "They have marvellous audiences there and I want our young people to meet the Russia of today." The orchestra will travel mostly in two specially chartered aircraft. Seven concerts will be given during a 10-day stay in the Soviet Union.

Their stay in West Germany is being financed by Mr Axel Springer, newspaper owner.—China Mail Special.

ETU asks for donations

Portsmouth, July 20.
Electrical Trades Union members were asked here today for donations towards the £80,000-odd costs of a 38-day high court hearing which ended in the deposing of their General Secretary Mr Frank Haxell.

Delegates at the 240,000-strong union's annual conference were handed a leaflet asking for help.

A high court judge ruled that anti-Communist Mr John Byrne should replace Mr Haxell as General Secretary. He found that Mr Haxell and four other union executives had conspired in ballot-rigging to secure Mr Haxell's election.

He also declared the union was Communist party-controlled, and "so managed as to serve the ideals of the party."—China Mail Special.

Miss Universe hits back at East Germany

New York, July 20.
Germany's Marlene Schmidt, the new Miss Universe, has denied claims by East German Communists that she was selected as the world's leading beauty in order to embarrass the Communist regime in her homeland.

"The charges are nonsense," she said. "Politics had nothing to do with my selection as Miss Universe."

"In the West, I am as much respected for being an engineer as I ever was in East Germany. The contest was judged not only on physical measurements, but personality and character as well."

About the East German claim, she said: "I had expected to hear something from them. It is uncomfortable for the East German Government to have the world reminded of the situation there."

"They are more interested in my body measurements than what's in my head," she said, making this challenge: "My measurements are 30½-23-30. Let them make the most of that!"—AP.

The last glorious summer

When England had two ladies in the Wimbledon Final

"TORRID!" said the headlines starkly. London, in July, 1914, was far more concerned about the heat-wave than about the fact that the "Ladies' Singles" final at Wimbledon was to be an all-British contest.

If people had realised then that such a thing would not happen again until July, 1961, they might have paid more attention. Nevertheless, as Mrs. Lambert Chambers and Mrs. D. R. Larcombe were lobbing away at each other for all they were worth down at Wimbledon, the public mind was unstriven. Women were not really serious games players—and the weather had not been so hot for years.

"Heat does you no harm," said Dr. Cantlie, of Harley-street, in a sombre interview. "People who go about without underclothing are the people who will suffer, follow."

"No drink at all should be taken during the heat of the day. Aerated water is the worst possible drink as it is apt to cause prickly heat."

Bare-footed street boys who had perhaps not read this prudent warning tussled for morsels of ice dropped by the itinerant ice-men in the City.

It was, of course, a doomed summer in 1914. Even if the rapidly approaching war was largely unobserved there were plenty to detect grave omens of social decline.

The Reverend Bacon Phillips wrote an urgent letter to the Evening Standard warning the nation against the unnatural practice of wearing false teeth.

There was general concern at the inadequate supplies of sun-bonnets for London's horses.

For the first time ever, an American crew carried off the Grand Challenge Cup at Henley, and Britons saw a new danger to their rowing men at the Berlin Olympics of 1910.

Tax up

Income tax had gone up to the stunningly high level of 15d. in the £.

A missionary revealed that women dressed as nuns were acting as white slave traffickers at "Continental docks" and stations.

No less disturbingly a subversive faction was urging a trebled dog tax to reduce the numbers of dogs in towns.

J. W. M. Thompson

And Mrs. Patrick Campbell was saying "bloody" every night in Pygmalion at His Majesty's.

It was, indeed, a scene to cause anxiety to the elders of society. Even the most pessimistic, however, could see some grounds for reassurance.

The British Fleet was given a "warm and sincere reception" on its visit to Kiel. "The increase of the German fleet and of its striking force does not exasperate us," said The Times.

And at home, an advertiser announced to grateful women that a new toilet cream would positively safeguard the complexion from "the discoloured appearance that we know as tan."

More and more people were spending holidays by the sea. "There is always a brisk sale of bathing dresses at this time of the year," noted one perceptive woman columnist, "and they are exceptionally smart during the present season."

She praised especially a neck-to-knees outfit in white satin, embroidered with shells and shells.

Paris ruling

The most fashionable female holiday-makers obeyed the Paris ruling and wore velvet or felt—"They make an excellent protection against the sun's burning rays."

But not all the smart set left London in July. One party of gilded youth sailed on a midnight excursion up the Thames in a decorated launch. Young Sir Denis Anson dived overboard for a dare, and was drowned.

His friend, Duff Cooper, also aboard, commemorated him in a poem published in The Times.

Most of the party of gilded youth were soon to die in France anyway.

So Mrs. Lambert Chambers and Mrs. Larcombe faced each other across the net at Wimbledon in a hot, cheerful, comfortable slightly bored world that was on the point of disappearing for ever.

Before they played the more important singles, had been done with the British player taking part for the second year running. "The outcome is unsatisfactory from the national standpoint," wrote one authority, "but reflected truly earlier play."

No excitement

Nothing could have been more satisfactory from the national standpoint than the "ladies' singles," but no one got very excited about anything the "ladies" did in sport.

In the end Mrs. Lambert Chambers defended her title 4-1 in two sets, earning a word of praise for her "clean hitting."

But the newspapers did not even print the full details of the final score.

The Queen's Suffolk trip to be by sea

SEE THIS CARTOON FOR "A SUFFOLK GARLAND FOR THE QUEEN"—A BOOK TO MARK HER VISIT TO THE COUNTY WHERE HE LIVES.

THE QUEEN, not normally a keen sailor, has decided to visit Suffolk by sea. She and Prince Philip are due to travel to open a £1,000,000 civic college on July 21.

But instead of the usual making of the 12-mile journey by land, the royal yacht Britannia will be brought into the port of London on July 20 and the Queen will go aboard that evening by launch from Westminster Pier.

A gentle 80-mile cruise by night, and the Britannia will anchor off H.M.S. Ganges at Shotley on the mouth of the River Gipping. The royal couple will then motor to Ipswich.

A complicated journey when the train journey takes 2hr. 20min. But a Buckingham Palace spokesman explained: "When a visit like this has naval connections I suppose they thought it was a nice opportunity to use the yacht."

SHOW-DOWN!

THE Trade Unions are getting tough. Needled by the Chancellor's "go-slow-on-wages" warning, each in turn is serving notice on the Government that it has no intention whatever of toeing the Schwyn Lloyd line.

The movement's attitude was made clear by Mr. Leonard Forden, president of Britain's biggest union—the Transport and General Workers' Union—at the Brighton conference.

"If we are to see," he said, "that our standards of living are not undermined by Government policies on prices and taxation we have to keep up a sustained drive for higher wages."

A MAJOR

BATTLE?

With Mr. Lloyd and his backroom boys at the Treasury planning stern economic measures the situation threatens to build up into a major battle.

If it comes to a showdown, could the unions afford to see it through? Is there enough money in the various unions' coffers to cope with a really big-scale strike?

Most of the unions have been building up investment portfolios with members' subscriptions. Some cash has been retained, but much of the money is in gilt-edged stocks and bonds to local authorities.

The local authority loans have usually been tied up for a fixed period, and cannot be turned into cash at short notice.

The gilt-edged stock is saleable. But the sharp setback in this section of the stock market during the past few years has severely reduced the value of most holdings. And any large-scale strike on the market would further depress prices.

The unions have found a way around the selling problem. The majority have accounts with the Co-op Bank, and this bank has agreed to lend money on the security of the gilt-edged stocks.

MARKET

VALUE

This has two advantages: holdings do not have to be sold at a big loss, as in the past, and the necessary cash can be got hold of fairly quickly.

But—and this is an important but—the Co-op Bank bases its lending on the market value of the investments, not on their original value.

And here the market setback has made quite a big difference to the financial strength of the unions.

For the current market value is in all cases substantially below the cost of the investments.

Efforts are now being made to counteract this erosion by switching part of the movement's funds into equities. The first Trade Union unit trust has just been given the official go-ahead, and a cash call has gone out to some of the big unions who have promised to support it.

But when it comes to cash dare the unions challenge Lloyd?

By William Davis

But this is a relatively long-term operation. With markets as they are, it will certainly not produce a single result in time for an autumn struggle.

Let us look at the latest financial report of some of the biggest unions, and see how much ready cash they could lay their hands on NOW—with the help of the Co-op Bank.

FOR ONLY

17 DAYS

Mr. Forden, who threatens so firmly on behalf of the giant Transport and General Workers' Union and its general secretary Mr. Frank Cousins, has £4,000,000 in his general funds. He can also call on bank balances of nearly £950,000. That works out at £3.15s. per member.

TGWU weekly strike pay has been agreed at £2. plus 10s. for a wife and 5s. for each child under 15. Taking an average of £2.10s. for each of the Union's members the funds would last exactly 11½ weeks.

Look now at the position of Mr. Bill Carron, the mild and politically moderate leader of the 1,000,000-strong Amalgamated Engineering Union.

His financial report shows that at December 31 last the AEU had gilt-edged holdings bought for £5,367,000—but worth only £4,207,000—and cash of £1,000,000.

The market has dropped further since then, but assuming a value of £4,287,000, Mr. Carron could pay the agreed strike pay of £2.10s. a week for each member for not more than 27 days.

The mineworkers? Mr. Sidney Ford, their leader, said that his executive rejected the Chancellor's appeal and was putting in for a substantial wage increase.

Strike pay here is only 10s. a week, plus 2s. for each child.

The union's funds would at this rate stretch over a period of nearly three weeks. But it does not need an economist to see how difficult it is to live on 10s. a week for any length of time.

Now this undoubtedly would have a strong bearing on the union's attitude.

The railwaymen? The NUR, bossed by Mr. Sidney Green, has £34m. in Government securities and £600,000 in cash.

This works out at £12 for each member, but strike pay is also the highest at £3 a week. So the union will exhaust its funds in a month.

The Electrical Trades Union has cash and gilt-edged invest-

IT'S FUN CATCHING COLDS SO THERE'S TO BE A CLUB FOR HUMAN GUINEA PIGS

HUMAN guinea pigs at the common cold research unit at Salisbury have such a good time that two of them plan a club for all who have been there. Since 1946 there have been 7,012.

"I've never laughed so much over a cold in my life," said Dr. M. L. Bynoe, who heads over the cold in the research unit. "It lasted two months. In one day I scored 72 handkerchiefs." This year his cold was gone before the 10 days were up.

She "caught" this cold last year at Harrow Hospital, the research unit. "It lasted two months. In one day I scored 72 handkerchiefs." This year his cold was gone before the 10 days were up.

It's like being in a holiday camp and there's such a spirit of comradeship," she said.

It is partly to avoid losing contact with the friends made, and partly to publicise the research that the club is being started.

All the volunteers will be able to keep in touch. "It will be like a pen club," says Miss Bynoe.

She also plans to advertise, and find somewhere in London a centre for social activities, such as an annual reunion and dance at Christmas.

A major strike would be disastrous for the country.

"It could well be disastrous for the union bosses, too.

Priest says: A 'ghost' drove me from Church of England

THE Rev. Guy Gibbons, 48-year-old Roman Catholic priest, of Calne, Wiltshire, is appealing for funds to build a new church. And he wants it built just down the road from the Church of England parish where he once was rector.

It was three years ago that Father Gibbons returned to the market town of Calne. Ten years previously he had resigned his living as rector of nearby Broughton-Gifford church because, he claims, of the "ghost" of Henry Younge, who was the last rector of the church before the Reformation.

"In that old church there was an unbroken line of rectors right back to the thirteenth century," Father Gibbons told me recently.

Younger was the last rector there before the Church of England came into existence in the sixteenth century. His memory haunted and reproached me, for I had reached the stage when I no longer had any faith in the Church of England.

Then one day I opened the parish register and wrote: 'I have been driven away by the ghost of Henry Younge.'

"It was on that day that I awoke and thought of the ghost of Henry Younge, and I decided to take his advice.

How did the parishioners act?

£12,000 aim

"They seemed totally indifferent," said Father Gibbons. "I let it be known that I would no longer be acting as rector. Another seemed to care very much."

For six months he stayed on at the rectory without setting foot inside the church. Another clergyman had arrived to take over the rector's duties.

"Earlier I had written to Dr. Geoffrey Hunt, to tell him how I felt," said Father Gibbons.

"I must raise the money somehow. To me it's a pressing challenge," he said.

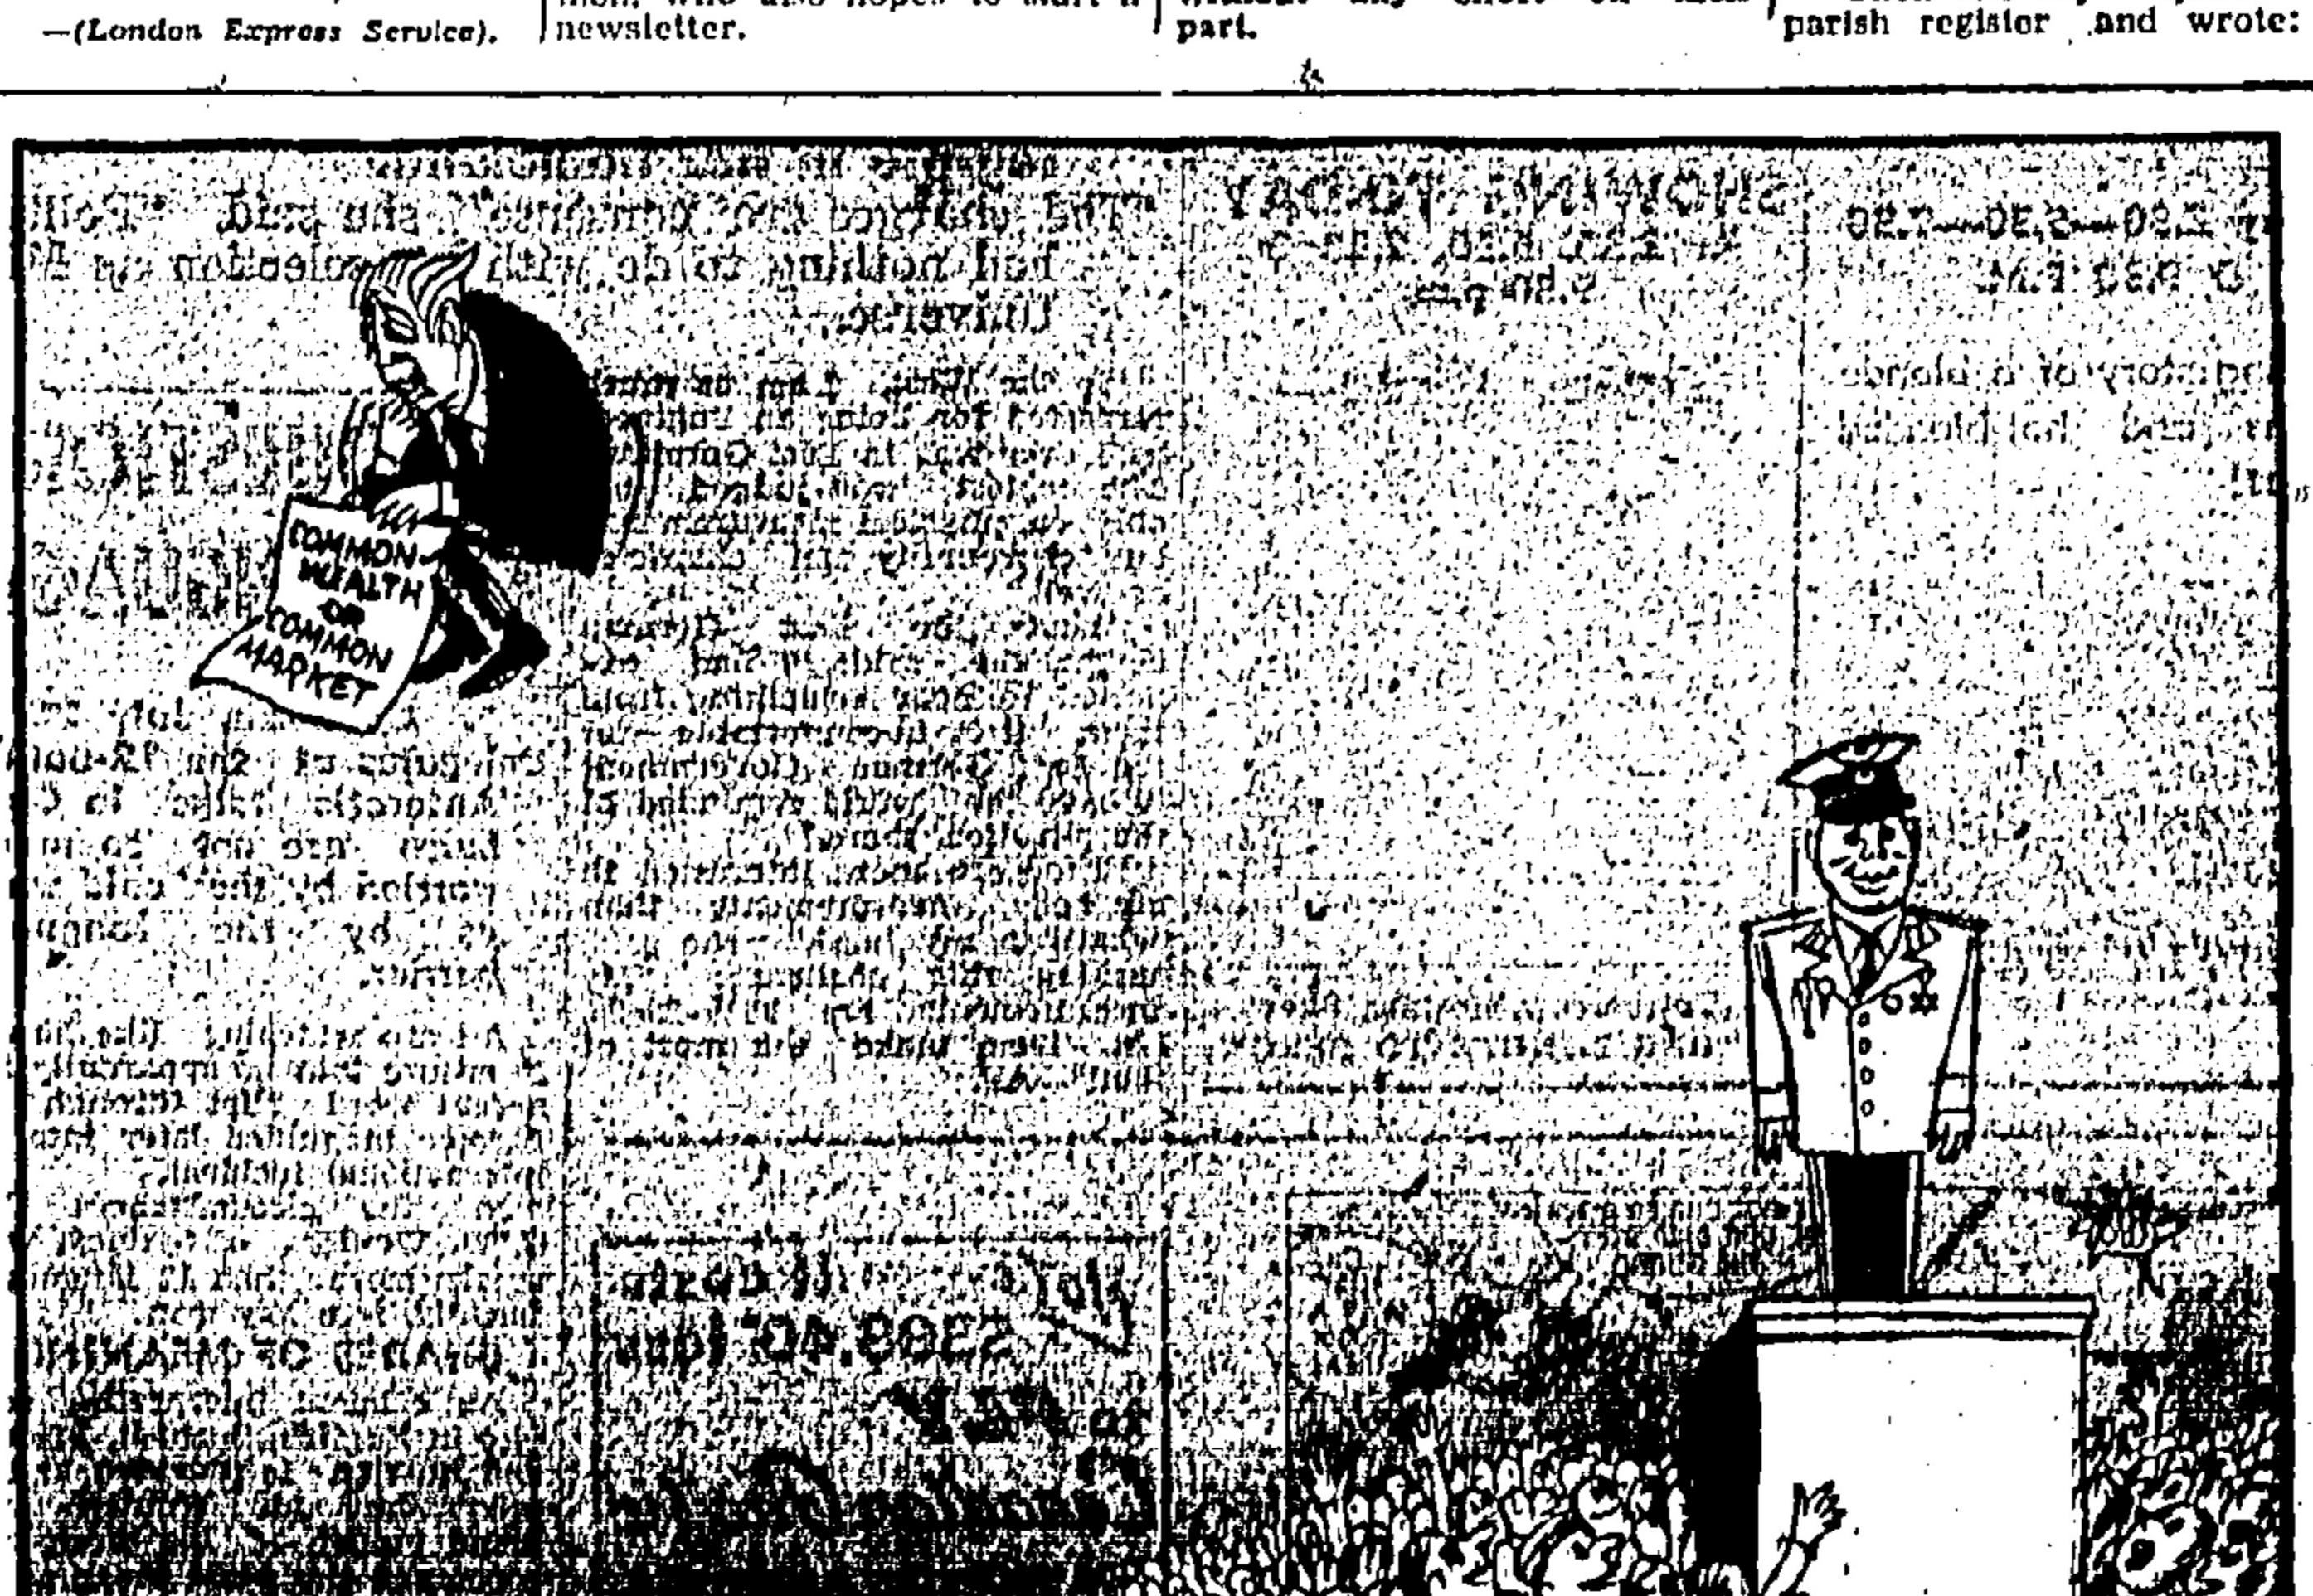

Father Gibbons is a doctor's son. At 19 he entered an Anglican theological college. When curate at his first parish he was attracted to the Moral Rearmament movement, but when two children read out their "messages" at a "Listening to God" session, said Father Gibbons, "that was the end of it for me. I realised quickly how easily that movement could produce horrible little priests."

Some time later he considered becoming a Communist, but he changed his mind at the last minute because he could not face life without religion.

Then Father Gibbons was sent as curate to a High Church parish.

"I was shocked at the dishonesty practised there," he said. "Whenever the bishop arrived the status of the Virgin Mary was hidden and everything toned down."

THE ONES THAT GOT AWAY!

STRIKING a new note, an American magazine has come out with a series of interviews on "How I failed to get a man."

Which certainly makes a nice change from those endless articles on how to trap one.

Is this, I wonder, a trend? Can we look forward to pages on "how my efforts to entice ten years of my age with the right make-up flopped" . . . "How I don't cope with my children" . . . "How my irreverent little supper for four proved uneatable" . . . and so on.

Human nature being what it is, and magazine readers bored as they must be with other people's success stories, I foresee a splendid future for Top Flops.

Job that counts

HE was tall and tough with magnificent sideburns. He was, I judged, about 18 years old.

For hours on end he was working on a little plumbing job in my bathroom and making singularly slow progress.

At tea-time I returned to find him propped against the wall with his eyes closed.

"Feeling faint?" said I. "No, miss—just saving myself for me evening work."

"You go to night classes?"

"Not on your Nelly," he told me cheerfully. "I've got a proper job from six to ten—at £5. an hour spot cash."

Bake your own biscuits . . .

Prune nut biscuits

2/3rd cup shortening, 2 cups brown sugar, 2 eggs, well beaten, 1/2 cup milk, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 3 1/4 cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon ground lemon rind and 1/4 cup shredded blanched almonds. Cream the butter and sugar, add the eggs and beat well. Add the dry ingredients and add alternately with the milk. Drop from a tea spoon on a well oiled baking sheet and flatten down each biscuit a bit. Bake in a moderate oven for about twelve minutes.

Lemon nut biscuits

1 cup butter, 2 cups castor sugar, 1 cup cream, 1/4 cup lemon juice, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 3 1/4 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon ground lemon rind and 1/4 cup shredded blanched almonds. Cream the butter and sugar, add the eggs and beat well. Add the dry ingredients and add alternately with the milk. Drop from a tea spoon on a well oiled baking sheet and bake about 10 minutes. In a moderate oven. These biscuits should be soft, so they must not be left in the oven longer than is necessary to bake them through.

Soft molasses biscuits

2/3rds cup butter, 2 cups brown sugar, 2 eggs, well beaten, 1/2 cup molasses, 1/4 cup sour milk, 3 1/4 cups flour, 2 teaspoons bicarbonates of soda, 1/4 teaspoon ginger and 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg. Cream the butter and sugar, add the eggs and beat well. Then add the molasses. Mix and sift the dry ingredients and add alternately with the sour milk. Drop from a tea spoon on a well oiled baking sheet and bake about 10 minutes in a moderate oven. These biscuits should be soft, so they must not be left in the oven longer than is necessary to bake them through.

Here's quick slimming even if you cheat!

HOLIDAYS start any time now. It's the moment of the year when a woman, making apprehensive comparisons between herself and her swimsuit, feels the call for a shock diet.

I have a new one: it comes straight from Paris where every overweight girl with a yen to be sleeker is busy carrying it out.

It's the "Five-by-Five-by-Five" diet; and, apart from not eating at all, it offers the simplest, surest way of melting off excess poundage I've discovered yet. All you have to do is this:

Twice a day you eat: 5 oz. of plain boiled green vegetables or salad, followed by 5 oz. of fresh fruit—and absolutely nothing else.

Genes to blush over, the Five-by-Five-by-Five diet obligingly removed 7lb. in a day under the week.

Liquid intake should not exceed one cup of sugarless tea (or coffee) on waking, a small cup of sugarless black coffee after lunch and dinner, and, if you must, a mid-afternoon cup of sugarless tea.

Fen days

This diet must not (repeat not) be followed for longer than 10 days at a stretch.

French friends sticking rigidly to it for this period claim the loss of a stone and more in the time. Deviators who have alternated the 5 oz. meat with 8 oz. grilled fish, or two boiled eggs, or an omelette, have come to the same result.

Personally, even after indulging in various little Seward deviations — such as a glass of dry sherry before, instead of a cup of sugarless black coffee after the midday 15 oz., or taking my 5 oz. of supper fruit for breakfast the morning after the odd raw tomato or apple when things got too much for me—even with these self-indulgences to be allowed, the Five-by-Five-by-Five diet obligingly removed 7lb. in a day under the week.

How to recognize 5 oz. of meat at a glance: The best way is to ask the butcher to cut your order to this weight. Five ounces makes a perfectly respectable piece of steak, quite a good-sized chop, and a really whoppng pig's trotter.

Five ounces of liver, to my mind, is as much liver as anyone wants to eat. The same for kidneys. Five ounces of chicken is a quarter of a fairly impressive bird; it's two good rounds of cold tongue, two thin slices or one thick one from a rib of beef.

Pork and ham, duck, goose, snipe, etc., are best left alone. But turkey is all right—one bird would probably do for the whole lot!

Vegetable

Five ounces of green vegetable means exactly what it says, so for the diet pernick leave out carrots and butter and broad beans. And, although they are green, don't live on peas.

The quickest way to deal with this, of course, is via one small packet of quick frozen—but it's a bit extravagant.

Five ounces of fresh fruit, by my calculation, is a small bowl of cherries, more strawberries than I can, at the moment, afford: a whole grapefruit, two small apples or one large one, a big orange, four plums, or three medium-sized tomatoes.

The first three days of the diet are the worst. After that, promise, you begin to enjoy it.

JACOBY BRIDGE

RAYMOND Balfe of New York was one of the two or three greatest auction bridge players but has confined his contract play to rubber bridge. He was found in the Regency Club yesterday afternoon and while his bidding would not please a bridge scientist his play of the cards is just about as good as third is.

Ray is a firm believer in the adage that bridge is a game ofaces and kings. Hence, while pairs opposite an opening bid he needs enough for a slam. Ray felt that since his 18 points were almost entirely made up of aces and kings, he wanted to be there.

He won the opening diamond lead and counted up tricks. He had nine tricks in high cards and needed three more. They might be produced in either clubs or spades, and Ray saw that the spades could keep for a while.

He entered dummy with a heart, led the jack of clubs; and let it ride. West took his king and knocked out Ray's ace of diamonds. He had to make a discard from dummy and his choice was the correct one of the six of hearts.

Then he cashed his king of spades; went over to dummy with a heart; and discarded his losing diamond on the ace and queen of spades. The lead did not succeed, so Ray led a no-trick to the table and finessed. When West showed out, Ray led dummy's last club and brought in the rest of the suit.

* More about the little black dress . . .

by JENNIFER LANE

THERE are two old fashion faithfus which I am willing to bet have been in nine women out of ton's wardrobe ever since their 21st birthday.

One is the little black dress and the other is the little black top.

Both these garments can be trotted out time and time again to suit all sorts of occasions.

With a fresh piece of fabric, a new skirt, a flower or belt, you can ring a Polly Peck design. With the changes and make the bodice flared and the whole effect look entirely different. To yourself any-shape of a little evening sweater by Toplet. It has a low neck decorated with a pleat frill of satin.

Not in black, but again with the latest glitter look in silver-threaded wool, the bloused, sleeveless top shown on the right sits prettily over a swishing pleated skirt.

Rupert and the Rugger Match—16

Although the match is big it is lined with lots of small and odd pieces of leather. Rupert is not present at all, and when he has recovered his wife, he pulls himself up, steps carefully out and climbs along a branch, peering into the distance to see if he can recognise the way he has come.

To remove leather-covered chairs, wash the leather with a sponge dipped in warm water to which a tablespoonful of vinegar has been added. Dry with a charcoal leather.

Then whisk up the whites of two eggs with two tablespoonsful of turpentine and mix the mixture into the leather. Dry with a clean, soft, linen cloth.

REACTIONS TO ICC DECISION

Mixed reception from the British press

The Imperial Cricket Conference decision to defer the question of South Africa's membership gets a mixed reception from the British press.

The Daily Mirror cricket writer, Brian Chapman, says: "I looked for an uncompromising condemnation of apartheid in cricket. It was not forthcoming."

'A blow to S. African cricket'

Johannesburg, July 20. The Imperial Cricket Conference's decision to defer the question of South Africa's membership was described yesterday as "a blow to South African cricket" by former Springbok captain Jack Cheetah.

He said: "It is such a pity that the matter has had to be deferred."

"I believe the way we play our cricket in South Africa has got to be determined by the laws of the country, and I believe our sportsmen are the means of keeping an even keel with other countries."

"It would appear this whole issue is being put into the realms of politics."

Cheetah added: "If our sportsmen were to refuse to play against non-white opponents then there would be some justification for such a step."

"But all our sportsmen have proved they are willing to meet players from any land provided it does not conflict with policies over which they have no say."

DISAPPOINTMENT

The Johannesburg newspaper, Rand Daily Mail, said there is extreme disappointment over the Conference's decision.

It added: "There is even the thought that Mr Foster Bowley, President of the South African Cricket Association, who attended as an observer, should have pressed for a definite decision."

"Especially disappointing, when viewed in first light, is the announcement that (South Africa's) Tests with New Zealand this summer will not carry 'official' tag and will therefore be of no consequence in cricket record books."

The Rand Daily Mail said that the question regarding the status of cricket officials in the Transvaal is whether the public would support unofficial Tests between South Africa and New Zealand.

The newspaper observed there is perhaps the consolation that players of the two countries chosen for the unofficial Tests would be able to go into the matches without fear that failure would blot their international records.—China Mail Special.

Australians' cricket tour proceeds down

London, July 20. Australian cricket tour proceeds are almost £9,000 down on those at the same stage of the 1958 tour, the Australian Treasurer, Mr Ray Steel, said today.

After the eighteenth match—the third Test at Leeds—the Australians had received about £4,000 as their share of gate receipts. At this point on the just tour the Australian receipts had totalled £51,700.

Mr Steel said he thought the early finish to the Lord's and Leeds Tests had helped cause the drop.

"The three-day finish at Leeds cost us a lot of money," he added.

Mr Steel said that tour costs would be a little over £60,000 and he expected that this amount would be cleared with the money received from the Nottinghamshire and Northamptonshire matches and, if there was a good attendance at Lord's on Saturday, against Middlesex.

Total expenses in 1958 totalled £40,000 but shipping fares and hotel accommodation had increased since—AP.

Daily Express sports editor Robert Bindley writes: "His high honour for the sound sense of our Commonwealth cricket

J. L. Manning writes in the Daily Mail: "It is clear that the show-down will come this time next year. Luckily England are not involved in matches with South Africa until 1964, so that the test of conscience for individual players invited to go there by MCC may never have to be made."

'No solution'

Daily Herald writer Charles Bray says: "South Africa is to remain in the cricket 'wilderness' for at least a year . . . at present there is no solution in sight."

Daily Sketch reporter Brian Stowell says: "Delegates will go back to their own countries to think up an acceptable formula to keep her in the Test circuit under the 'jolly Old Pals' Act."

"Money, not politics and the colour bar, has brought this about. We can't afford to keep the Springboks out, nor can they afford to stay out."

"Apartheid will continue in Test games" says a Daily Worker headline.

In an editorial the Times suggested that, until there is some decision in the clouds in South Africa, no solution may be possible to the Imperial Cricket Conference's consideration yesterday of whether or not to heed demands that South Africa be excluded because of her racial policies.

It added: "There is even the thought that Mr Foster Bowley, President of the South African Cricket Association, who attended as an observer, should have pressed for a definite decision."

But the Conference was a Commonwealth body because it so happened all the main cricketing countries had hitherto been Commonwealth members. Now that that was no longer the case, the Conference's Commonwealth character could be changed for an international one.

It said the Conference then declared, 24 runs behind the tourists' first innings, and by the close the Australians had made 20 with-out loss to increase their lead to 53 runs.

If a finish is to be reached tomorrow, Richie Benaud will have to make a challenging declaration himself in the second innings.

Good start

Northamptonshire, resuming at 24, were given their best start to an innings this summer by Brian Reynolds and Michael Norman, who shared a first-wicket partnership of 120 against an Australian attack that looked far from menacing.

Reynolds (50) and Norman (60) each hit nine fours, but both they and skipper Raman Subba Row fell inside an hour while only 20 runs were added.

Any suggestion of a collapse, however, was dispelled by a useful fourth wicket stand which looked out of sport." Politics in this case are already right in side and will not be exploited by being ignored.

For those who carry their condemnation of South Africa's racial policies into every department of life the answer is simple: Kick them out. Such a conclusion rests on two assumptions: that this is the best way of influencing nationalist opinion, and that decisions about cricket fixtures should be subordinated to racial considerations.

—China Mail Special.

'It's not cricket'

Now Delhi, July 20. Indian critics circle today expressed disappointment at the decision of the Imperial Cricket Conference to defer consideration of South Africa's membership.

Indian Deputy Defence Minister and President of the Delhi Cricket Association Sardar Majithia said:

"South Africa is no longer a member of the Commonwealth and she should not be admitted (to the ICC) so long as she pursues her present apartheid policy."

"It is not cricket to segregate anyone on the basis of colour or skin alone."—China Mail Special.

Northampton, July 20. An unbeaten 80 in 2½ hours by Albert Lightfoot helped Northamptonshire total 289 for six against the Australian touring team here today.

The county then declared, 24 runs behind the tourists' first innings, and by the close the Australians had made 20 with-out loss to increase their lead to 53 runs.

as well as bowling, and Benaud, who managed 24 overs, gave further evidence that he is reaching peak fitness for the fourth Test next Thursday.

TRUMAN FAMILY CLASH ON CHRISTINE'S FUTURE

By GERALD WILLIAMS

Even Christine Truman's parents have differing views on whether she should retire from top-class tennis or have another crack at Wimbledon.

I spoke to both of them after they had recovered from the nightmare of watching Christine slither from within sight of victory to cruel defeat.

"She must carry on," says Mr. Truman, a London accountant. "Of course the decision must be Christine's, but I think she'll come back for another try. I would like her to try again."

"I think she would have won but for her fall. After all she was only a point from leading 5-3."

"She should retire," said Mrs. Truman. "I would like her to finish now. I always said from the time she was 12, that I would like her to get to the top and then finish at 21."

Agreed

"She will be 21 in January, and I think she has got to the top. I would hate her to win Wimbledon at 35 and be a sour, hard-bitten person."

"She isn't now, I know, but girls who go on and on in lawn tennis can get very hard and bitter. I don't want that to happen to Christine."

Mr. and Mrs. Truman are agreed on one point: that on her retirement from Christine is still improving.

"But if she goes on, something could happen again, and she could fail to win again," says Mrs. Truman. "There are always younger players coming along, getting better all the time."

Christine herself is non-committal. "I shall definitely go to America for the Wightman Cup and to Forest Hills for the American championships," she said.

Weekender

And then retire? "I don't know. I don't want to go on playing and not getting any better."

If she does retire this summer Christine will become a weekend player. But British lawn tennis officials are sure to do all they can to persuade her that her greatest triumphs lie ahead.

Except for elder sister Isabel, who is in Canada, the whole Truman family sat round the Centre Court, watching the Wimbledon final.

Christine's sister Nell, 15, who was in the competitors' seats with elder brother Humphrey, burst into tears when Christine slipped and fell.

Five minutes

She sobbed inconsolably through the rest of the match. "If only my leg had been rubbed for five minutes — that was all that was needed," said Christine.

"I felt as if I was carrying my leg around with me, instead of my leg carrying me."

I danced nearly every dance at the Wimbledon Ball. "My leg was a little stiff when I got out of bed, but it needed only a little loosening-up."

Miss Truman settles to a quiet afternoon in the garden of her Woodford home. But first her practice net must come down... some memories are too fresh and too bitter to need a reminder just after her Wimbledon disaster.

LOCK: I MAY QUIT SURREY

By CRAWFORD WHITE

Tony Lock, 32-year-old spearhead of the England spin attack against the Australians, is likely to quit Surrey for League cricket next season.

Disappointment at the small sum donated by Surrey cricket fans to his benefit, which brought him only £5,000 after 15 years as a Surrey and England player, close friends suspect, may have been the reason for his offer to the North.

Although Lock refuses comment about his benefit, which brought him only £5,000 after 15 years as a Surrey and England player, close friends suspect the meager response hurt him bitterly.

'NOT THE FIRST OFFER'

Lock, always the diplomat, said the other day during the tea interval against Leicestershire at the Oval, "There are reasons for me considering the move, but I don't want to divulge them until I have informed Surrey."

'NOT THE FIRST OFFER'

Lock, always the diplomat, said the other day during the tea interval against Leicestershire at the Oval, "There are reasons for me considering the move, but I don't want to divulge them until I have informed Surrey."

"This offer from a northern club is not the first I have had. I have been thinking of going into League cricket for some time. I would rather it should be now. I could play many years of League cricket and the spare days during the week would give me plenty of time to build my business in Surrey."

Lock, whose contract with Surrey ends in December, said that he would be willing to accept an invitation to tour India, Pakistan, and Ceylon this winter, he said, "is a different matter."
